History of the MasterCard Memorial Cup

The 2009 season marks the 91st anniversary of the Memorial Cup.

The Memorial Cup, one of the most prestigious and coveted trophies in North American sport, has a rich tradition that has shaped the way junior hockey is played in North America. The trophy was originally known as the OHA Memorial Cup and was donated by the Ontario Hockey Association in March, 1919, in remembrance of the many soldiers who paid the supreme sacrifice for Canada in The First World War.

Initially the Cup was awarded to the national junior hockey champions of Canada. Later on it came to signify Junior "A" hockey supremacy when in 1934, junior hockey in Canada was divided into "A" and "B" classes. In 1971, when junior "A" hockey was divided into major junior and Tier 11 junior A, the Memorial Cup was awarded to the higher category and was given to the major junior hockey champions of Canada. In 1972, a round-robin tournament format replaced the old play-down system to determine the champions. Since then, the champions of the Western Hockey League, the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and the Ontario Hockey League, have met each spring in a round-robin series with the two top teams playing off in a sudden-death game to determine the Cup champions.

The Memorial Cup became an international trophy in 1983 as the tournament was held outside Canada for the first time, when the Portland Memorial Coliseum was the host arena. The hometown Winter Hawks took home the title that year to become the first non-Canadian based team to win the Memorial Cup. Portland again hosted the tournament in 1986 and Seattle played host in 1992. In 1991, the Spokane Chiefs of the Western Hockey League became the second U.S. based team to claim the title. The Chiefs won the title again last year in Kitchener, ON.

In the last 36 tournaments since the round-robin format was established, Western Hockey League teams have won the title 18 times, Ontario Hockey League teams have claimed 12 titles and Quebec Major Junior Hockey League teams have won the title seven times.

The Memorial Cup will be held in Rimouski, Quebec this year when the 91st annual tournament is played from May 15-24.
